why he was fired.

Echols, when asked the reason for the firing,

Last fall, another toll taker was given a 30-day suspension and allowed to make restitution for allegedly stealing bridge receipts. Afterward, all city employees were required to sign a letter informing them that any employees caught stealing from the city in the future would be fired and prosecuted.

Acting Chief of Police Birl Reed, appointed Tuesday to replace retired chief Farris Smith, said police had not been asked to investigate the latest case for possible prosecution.

"It was an internal (bridge) investigation."
Reed said. "They didn't consult us."

Echols was asked if the fired man would be prosecuted. "Not that I heard," he said.

Environmental dangers can hit close to home

By Dawn Adams Huffman

Those who worry about the effects on the environment of industrial pollution may want to look closer to home, environmentalists say. While there is no denying the dangers of industrial pollution, the threat presented to the environment—and to people—by hazardous household waste often is overlooked, said Bill Redding, senior staff member of the Coalition for the Environment.

He believes counties or municipalities should schedule a day on which people can drop off old came of paint, furniture polish and other lettover chemicals so the hazardous waste could be disposed of Careley discarded motor oil, antifreeze and other car products are their way into the ground water, he said.

"The No. 1 problem is that, everything we don't want, we throw down the sewer," Redding said.

Throwing away cans of pesticide, paint, car products and batteries is a habit most people-develop without realizing the impact, Redding said. They give little thought to the fact that discarded chemicals go from the trash can to incinerators and landfills, he said.

"A little bit of paint from one person may not make any difference, but when thousands of people do it, you're concentrating the life of the property of the property

"Folks have a tendency to heap on more pesticides or herbicides than they need," he added. A good example of this happened when homes near Creve Coeur Lake were treated with a pesticide called chloridine, said Steve Tullos, who is with the waste management division of the St. Louis County Health Department. As a result, the fish in Creve Coeur Lake are not edible because the chloridine built up in the fishes' bloodstreams, Tullos said. Children's books hold real-life key

My husband and I each have used the story of "the boy who cried wolf" in the past few days to try to dissuade our 4½-year-old son from throwing tantrums over what we perseive to be trivial problems. We came to this analogy independently and without discussing the situation with each other.

This real-life example illustrates power of literature in all our lives. Patricis McKissack, an alteen Is. Louis, eitse this influence when discussing the importance of literature.

McKissack was an English teacher for nine years, worked as an editor for Concordia Publishing and has written 52 books for children. Figures the makeover already is a success, having transformed the worst room in the house into the best. It is the loggia, a small sunroom with a wall of windows overlooking the garden.

For Namy Bigs was a perfect gardener's study, a place to enjoy the garden on a rainy day or to plan the next season's plantings.

Then she made the room seem larger. First, she chose a monochromatic color strick. Next, a ceiling fresco was done, also to create the illusion of space.

For furniture, Bridwell coupled a modern-style lounge with a Renaissance-review, she said.

In a guest room, Barbara Buercklin and Marge Winchell broke the always-against-the-wall mold, placing the bed in the middle of the room.

Free evening diabetes class on Wednesday

Kathy Haarmann, RN, Patient Education coordinator at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, will teach a free Take Charge of Your Diabetes class at SEMC on Wednesday, April 18, from 7 to 10 p.m. in Pascal Hall, on the ground floor of the medical cen-ter.

There will be a general overview of diabetes, presented by a diabetes nurse educator. It will include symptoms, management, exercise, testing and complica-tions of diabetes.

A registered dietitian will give nutrition information related to diabetes, including information on sweeteners, fiber, label read-ing and fast foods.

Dual-degree program set

Missouri Baptist College and the College of Engineering at the University of Missouri-Columbia have agreed to participate in a cooperative arrangement.

The arrangement will provide for a jointly sponsored dual-degree program, it was announced this spring.

Students who successfully complete the initial three-year segment of the program at Mis-souri Baptist College will then be permitted to continue through a two-year segment in the College of Engineering at Columbia, a spokesman said.

Final completion of the five-year program will result in the student receiving two baccalau-reate degrees.

Missouri Baptist College is four year, evangelical Christi college located in west St. Loc County

A pharmacist will speak on medications, including insulin and oral agents.

Diabetes is the number one cause of new blindness and the third leading cause of death by disease in this country.

The class is free, but space is imited, so preregistration is required. The SEMC Education Resources Department phone number is 798-3201.

Ernest has been to camp.
Ernest has saved Christmas.
Now the know-it-all comic with the obnoxious mannerisms finally has achieved true greatness.
Ernest is in jall ().
Jim Varney, in his third movie
on the life and times of Ernest.
P. Worrell, stars as a night jamjam y duty. Ernest thinks it is going to be an exciting time.
After all, he is patriotic. More importantly, this is the only time he ever has been invited anywhere.

While serving on the jury during the trial of a criminal already in jail on other charges, Ernest ends up in jail himself when the jury is taken on a bus to a nearby prison for some special testimony.

The "field trip," as Ernest calls it, actually is a use by the criminal on trial is crooked attorney to get Ernest inside the iail's grounds because Ernest looks just like an important crime boss named Felix Nash who is incarcerated there. The plan is to make Ernest switch places with Nash, who is three days away from death in the clertric chair.

Ennest no model aimed at the kid crowd. The film's lighting and costume designs are full of bright shades of pastel coloring and oversized perspectives. It emphasizes this film's cartoon flair.

When Ernest become magne-

tized by a failed attempt to fry-him in the electric chair, his magical electronic zapping pow-ers are depicted as they would be in an animated feature. When Green does not be a supported to the the bank lobby, the action is akin to scenes from "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" with Ernest bouncing around the inte-rior like a cartoon character propelled by an artist's flying pen and brush.

pen and brush.

"Ernest Goes to Jail" represents Varney's first attempt at a "serious" role because he plays both Ernest and his mean-spirited look-alike, Nash. The film will keep the children laughing and it might even evoke an occasional church the comedy, smooth, fast and appealing in the genre that, Ernest has made famous.

Rated PG (mild violence). Running time: 81 minutes. Crit ic's rating based on four stars.

Harry Hamm is entertainment editor for both KMOX-AM (1120) and the CBS Radio Network.

JUROR ERNEST P. WORRELL is taken to view the scene of a prison crime, only to be snatched from the crowd and forced to trade places with an evil inmate he looks like in "Ernest opes To Jail."

Varney's 'Ernest' took easy step to big screen

By Harry Hamm Staff writer

It was 18 years ago that actor Jim Varney — better known as Ernest P. (for power tools) Warney — Gas Co, and hundreds of other Companies across the United States — landed his fisst big television commercial.

"My first was for a car dealer in Nashville," Varney said. "I was working at Opryland at the time as an actor in a variety allows working at Opryland at the time as an actor in a variety and the companies of the car dealer to the companies of the car dealer you don't want to buy your car from. I wore a checkered bookies' jacket and a loud, outdated wide tie and my hair was slicked back. It was nothing like Ernest."

Ernest."
That job sparked one of the most successful performing careers in the history of television advertising. To date, Vaney has shot more than 2,000 television commercials.

Varney came to the attention of Disney Studio executives after they learned that his Ernest character had a vast commercial appeal to family audiences. It was a natural step to take they had established and transfer it to the big screen.

Varney's film career really began in 1987 with Disney's "Ernest Goes to Camp," which grossed more than $20 million grossed the third "Ernest film," "Ernest Goes to Jail."

"We try to do entertaining family movies and we not grow that you wouldn't do a script that in any way was offensive. I think families have come to realize that they can take their children to one of our films and know. They will have an "We don't get what you would call rave reviews, but I can't take reviews too seriously. I think the critics are warming up to us because we don't misrepresent. What we do is what we set out to do."

Understanding pensions requires careful study

Few money matters are as difficult as trying to figure out your pension benefits. — New rules that extend those benefits to more workers make the situation even more confusing. They have to do with "vesting"—the amount of time you must work with contributions to the plan before you are entitled to a pension.

must work with contributions to the plan before you are entitled to a pension.

In they seem simple enough at the plan before you are entitled to a persion plan after five years of eligible employment. Before, some plans required seven, 10 or even more years.

Alternatively, you can become partially vested after three years, fully some after three years. The problem is, there are many exceptions to these straightforward statements.

Congress-approved the rules are greatly to you, though.

If you are in a pension plan that comes under a union contract, and that contract was approved before March 1, 1989. The three years approved the property of the years of years of the years of years of the years of y ever comes first.

This is important for you to know if you are thinking of quitting your job. The reason? Let's say you have six years on the job. You are under a five-year union contract that expires in expositated by the union and is a single-employer program, under which you are vested in seven years.

when the contract expires, you will be fully vested under the new five-year rule. But if you quit even one day before the contract expires, you will lose all your pension benefits.

How can you be sure? Get in touch with the administrator of you have the contract expires, you will lose all your pension benefits.

How can you be sure? Get in touch with the administrator of your benefits Statement.

This 'vill tell you where you stand. Ask also for copies of your work records.

At the same time, request your early nings records for the years in question from the Social Security Administration.

When these documents arrive, compare them to make sure that your work is correctly reflected in your pension account. If not, you need to contact the pension administrator to resolve the discrepancy. The sooner you do this, the better.
